AMERICAN CITIZENS.

The Captains of Two Atlantic Racers Come Under the Stars and Stripes.

Panic at a Pittsburg Factory Fire. Queer Accident to a Lighthouse.

A British Ship Undergoes a Terrible Battering During Her Long Voyage.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—Captain Fred A. Watkins of the Inman line racer City of Paris is to become an American citizen, so is Captain Lewis of her sister ship the City of New York. Both vessels have received American registers by special act of Congress. As the veteran commanders cannot be naturalized immediately, they will be placed in charge of two fast freight steamships now being constructed on the Clyde for the Inman line. When they become full-fledged American citizens, Captains Watkins and Lewis will be restored to their former commands or assigned to the new racers for which Messrs. Cramp & Sons of Philadelphia have the contract.

Knocked Down a Lighthouse.

LONDON, Nov. 18.—A curious accident occurred to-day in Belfast Lough. Lighthouse number two, near the entrance to the lough, is built of wood, and not a very heavy structure. The steamship Medway was proceeding on her way without paying attention to the lighthouse, with which the steamer suddenly came into collision. Instead of the steamer being wrecked the lighthouse was demolished and toppled over into the sea. The lighthouse fortunately floated, while the inmates shouted for help. The crew of the Medway lowered boats and rowed to where the lighthouse was floating. Two inmates were drowned and two rescued unharmed.

American Cattle for Canada.

MONTREAL, Nov. 18.—An agitation is proposed to be started here shortly with a view to the admission of United States cattle into Canada. If the Government grants such permission, it is probable that dead meat factories will be established and next summer will also see United States cattle being exported to the old country via Montreal. A circular will soon be sent out to the leading stock raisers of the country asking their advice regarding the introduction of United States cattle into Canada.

Purely Unofficial.

MONTREAL, Nov. 18.—The premier of Newfoundland, Sir Wm. Whiteway, accompanied by Lady Whiteway, returned to Montreal last night on his way from Halifax to Toronto, and is registered at the Windsor. Sir William will remain in Montreal a day or two, and from here will go to Ottawa, but his visit to the capital is purely unofficial.

Disowned by Her Father.

DENVER, Colo., Nov. 18.—William Morland of Portland, Ogn., is here instituting a vigorous search for Jennie Semond, an heiress to $40,000. What makes the case more difficult is the fact that she is travelling under assumed names. She was disowned by her father at the time of her birth, and ever since her girlhood has been leading rather a wild life.

Arrested in Mexico.

TORONTO, Nov. 18.—During the past few months the funds of the Bank of Hamilton have been relieved of between $40,000 and $50,000 by means of forgeries, one of the culprits being C. H. Davidson. The Government, learning that Davidson was in Mexico, sent detectives after him and a dispatch just received announces his arrest.

No Cause Assigned.

VISALIA, Cal., Nov. 18.—David Shaff, a fisherman, shot his wife and then killed himself this morning. Mrs. Shaff was shot through the right side of the neck and will probably die. She is the mother of four small children. The cause of the shooting is not yet known.

Fire and Panic.

PITTSBURG, Nov. 18.—The Armstrong cork factory, in which over 600 girls are employed, is on fire. It is reported that a frightful panic occurred when the fire was discovered. A general fire alarm has been sounded.

John L. Explains It.

A special from New York to the Seattle Telegraph says: I claim that Harrison was drugged.

JOHN L. SULLIVAN.

CAPTURE OF WOLFE.

Caught Near the Mission—Heavy Halibut Catch—The Shingle Mills.

VANCOUVER, Nov. 18.—Wolfe, the San Francisco embezzler who just escaped capture in Victoria, was arrested at Mission yesterday by Sergeants Waler of Victoria and Haywood of Vancouver. Wolfe was disguised as a tramp, and was with difficulty recognized. He had tramped it from Vancouver to Mission and had suffered terribly. He had a ticket in his pocket for Montreal. He says Wolfe is not his name, but has had so many lately he had forgotten the true one. Wolfe goes to Victoria this afternoon. Sergt. Haywood also arrested Fred Johnstone at Mission for stealing $150 and watch from McKnight's Hotel, Lytton.

The ship Kinkora sailed from Liverpool on Wednesday for Vancouver and Victoria.

The steam schooner Mischief arrived with twelve thousand pounds of halibut caught between Cape Mudge and Queen Charlotte Sound. She was gone 33 days.

Fire underwriters threaten to raise the rates of insurance unless the city compels business men to keep their back yards free from combustible material.

A company has bought the output of almost all the shingle mills of the province, and now the mill owners find they are compelled to hold stocks while shingles from the Sound are going forward to Eastern markets.

Dr. Davie, provincial health officer, yesterday directed the mayor to appoint a doctor to examine boats coming from the Sound, but as this has been done for weeks by the port doctor, the appointment is not deemed necessary.

BLOWN TO ATOMS.

The Terrible Effects of Dynamite—One Man Killed, One Injured.

OTTAWA, Nov. 18.—There was a terrible explosion of dynamite this morning on the Ottawa & Parry Sound Railway, now building near this city. A laboring man named Therian was blown to atoms, and another man was fatally injured. The injured man's right arm is smashed into small pieces like a bag of bones, and he is bleeding from the mouth and is unconscious. His name is Brown. The explosion was caused by the dynamite lying near the tool box. It is thought a tool was dropped into a box containing twelve cartridges, the concussion causing them to go off. Therian leaves a family and nine children. The place is a fearful looking wreck.

NANAIMO NEWS.

One Prisoner Robs Another—Funeral of the Late Mr. Butler.

NANAIMO, Nov. 18.—On Wednesday night Sergeant Gibbs locked two men up in the Bastion for being drunk on the streets. One was a German and the other a Russian Finn. The latter, on awakening the next morning, discovered that his watch and chain was missing, and although he complained to his neighbor all knowledge of it was denied. On being brought before Mr. Planta he mentioned his loss and one of the constables who removed the two men, happened to see the German with the stolen property, and on being searched it was found to be in his possession. The court sentenced him to six months in jail.

The funeral of P. M. Butler, who lost his life while out hunting a few days ago, took place from his late home at Departure Bay yesterday, and was followed by numerous friends. Great regret is felt for his wife and children.

The stone for the foundation of the new fire hall is being placed in the ground. The loan for this purpose passed by the ratepayers months ago and many have been wondering when it would be utilized.

St. Paul's Institute executive committee have arranged for a dance to be given in the hall on Tuesday next. Mrs. W. H. S. Perkins, of the ladies' committee, has charge of the refreshments, and as these dances were very popular last winter no doubt they will be well attended this year. A billiard tournament will be held by the members.

SENT UP FOR TRIAL.

The Two Indians Maintain Their Innocence—The Synod.

NEW WESTMINSTER, Nov. 18.—The synod of the diocese of Westminster has closed its session. The synod will be incorporated. The officers are: Rev. G. Dicham, elected clerical secretary; W. J. Walker, lay secretary; executive committee—Ven. Archdeacon Woods, Revs. Clinton, Flewelling, Irwin, Messrs. Gray, Schon, Jenns, Cambie; auditors, C. E. Woods and L. A. Wyld.

The Indians Jack and Peter were sent up for trial for the murder of Pittendrigh. Both made statements denying all knowledge of the murder.

Charlie White, a Chinaman, has been liberated. He was charged with attempted murder at Vancouver. All the witnesses have disappeared. The crown says there is a conspiracy to get him out of the way, as he is innocent.

J. J. Shaw, accountant for Major & Pearson, financial and insurance agents, was first troubled, about five weeks ago, with a piercing pain in the side of his head, apparently in the eustachian canal in the ear process. The pain would be excessively acute for a time and would suddenly cease. Then after a short lapse of time it as suddenly began again. He consulted leading doctors in the city, and told them he thought something was alive inside his head. The doctors laughed and said an abscess was forming. Ten days ago, Shaw became nearly demented by the pain, and had to abandon work. To his employers he declared his belief that his reason was departing. A week ago a large gathering formed behind his ear, and yesterday it broke while he was in Vancouver. A medical man was called in and, on syringing the ear, a large spider, apparently not long dead, was taken out, and the pain instantly left his head. The doctors are now of opinion that the spider had lived in his head for some weeks, and pronounce the case as very remarkable. When and how the spider got there Shaw has no idea.

The Morning Post, Westminster's new eight-page daily, will publish its initial sheet about December 1. A competent staff has been engaged, and the paper is said to be starting under auspicious circumstances. There will be no Sunday paper, a Monday morning edition taking its place. The Post is being run by the printers of Westminster, and it is believed they have all their advertising guaranteed for one year. The people of the Royal City were thoroughly canvassed before the scheme was allowed to go ahead, and when it was found that nine-tenths of the residents were ready and willing to support a home morning paper, in preference to the so-called interloping morning newspapers of Vancouver, it was deemed safe to proceed.

ROYAL LIQUOR ENQUIRY.

Sir Matthew Baillie Begbie, C.J., Has a Poor Opinion of Those Who Take Nothing.

He Says Abstemiousness in the Matter of Liquor is a Sign of Inferiority.

A Mass of Varied and Interesting Evidence Gathered by the Commission.

Mr. R. H. Hall was on the stand after the recess of the Liquor Traffic Commission yesterday afternoon. He said the United States Government had attempted to establish the license system in Alaska but the dealers objected as their business was more remunerative under the prohibition system. Prohibition, he considered an incentive to lawlessness.

Sir Mathew Baillie Begbie, C.J., had spent two days in the Northwest Territories when the prohibitory law was in force. He was never so pestered in his life. Everybody he met tried to force whiskey on him. In Wrangel, where there is also a prohibitory law, he found that the Indians had all the liquor they wanted. In Constantinople liquor was not sold but at night the population was very dangerous. He preferred for himself beer and light wines, but people here as a rule, he thought, preferred stronger liquor. The proportion of people who drink to excess is small. Drinking has diminished in this province. The Mounted Police, the men who were supposed to prevent the sale of liquor in the Northwest escorted him, when he was there. They had all the whiskey they wanted. This showed the corroding influence of the law. The men there showed their courtesy by offering him liquor. Prohibition, he thought, neither decreased or increased the amount of liquor consumed. The saloons, he did not think, interfered with the business and social business influence of a community. He did not think drink was altogether responsible for crime. A man who was going to commit a crime did not get drunk to do it. It was, in his opinion, more troublesome to have to go without liquor than to have a plentiful supply. If the latter is the case those who do not like it can keep out of the way. It is because the white men are superior that they will have liquor. It is a mark of inferiority if a man cannot drink. Some men, of course, abstain from drink for good purposes. He, of course, did not know many men who did not take a drink. The liquor should be regulated just as are the big political meetings in Trafalgar Square. The liquor trade has no connection with the big political meetings. The Salvationists should be regulated in the same manner. He did not think the people as a whole would send prohibitionists to Parliament. Prohibition was not expedient if practicable and not practicable if expedient. The license laws regulate the trade to a great extent. The men of the Northwest Mounted Police who took liquor were superior to men who did not take it. The desire for liquor is a sign of superiority. Nations who abstain from liquor are generally inferior.

Hon. A. N. Richards, Q.C., had visited Ontario since the Scott Act was in force. Many of the men who formerly drank were better men after the law was passed. If a prohibition law was passed and breweries and distilleries closed the owners should be compensated. It was an interference to men's rights to prevent men from drinking. Of course some men drink to excess. As to himself it would not hurt him as he did not want drink, but that was no reason why other men who wanted it should be prevented from getting it. As regards men killing themselves by drink, it was the same as men killing themselves by eating and smoking. Many men killed themselves by eating and drinking.

Sheriff McMillan was the next witness. The increase of restrictions to the liquor traffic were beneficial. A prohibition law could be enforced on this island as well as any other law. Under the law the officers should be allowed to search houses and persons for liquor. In his opinion three-fourths of the crimes committed were traceable to liquor.

Dr. Ernest Hall was called by Mr. Spence. The Scott Act in Ontario decreased the use of liquor. The act was repealed. As a matter of principle he favored prohibition. He knew that there was illicit dealing in liquor in Victoria. The efforts to restrain the illicit trade were spasmodic. He knew as a fact that the people would vote for a prohibitory law. Total abstinence tends towards more perfect health. The scientific minds are turning to prohibition. He knew of no cases where licensed dealers broke the law. The illicit dealing was carried on in houses of ill-fame. He would allow tourists to have liquor if a prohibitory law was enforced.

Mr. Joshua Davies, president of the Provincial Royal Jubilee Hospital, took the stand after Dr. Hall. The license law works satisfactorily here, and the people compare favorably with any other community. He had always thought that anyone should be allowed to sell liquor under a high license. Then all liquors, both Canadian and foreign, should be inspected. Then all saloons would have to sell good liquors. He was opposed to prohibition on principle and on account of its impracticability. If such a law was passed it would encourage smuggling. A law giving officers authority to search persons and houses would be expensive. It would also prevent travel, as tourists wanted good liquors. The greatest danger to men was the poor quality of liquor. Men can get drunk on many things besides the ordinary liquors. For instance, some of the northern Indians make an intoxicating drink out of seaweed.

Mr. Sauer, president of the Licensed Vintners' Association, stated that he believed the license laws were obeyed by Victoria.

The commission adjourned at 6 p.m. until this morning.

Mr. Robert Ward, J.P., president of the Robert Ward Company, Limited, was the first witness called this morning. He had resided in the province for 22 years, during which time he has acted as licensing commissioner. The present act was advantageous to all, being practically local option. Licenses for saloons had generally been refused by the commissioners, as it was considered that there were enough saloons in Victoria, and not on account of any disorderly conduct on the part of saloon keepers. The Sunday closing act had had also worked very well in the city. In May last he, as a justice of the peace, convicted 14 country saloon keepers for selling liquor on Sunday, but these convictions were set aside. As licensing commissioner he always enquired of the police if their were any disorderly saloons in the city. He found that the saloons were very orderly, and in only one case, the Standard theatre, was it necessary to cancel the license. Those who sell liquor to Indians are, as a rule, a very profligate class. The prohibiting law in Alaska encouraged smuggling of whiskey into that territory. Prohibition would not be an advantageous thing for any country, it could not be carried out. There would be more drunkenness, sly drinking and smuggling. A few years ago there was an illicit distillery in the Saanich district, but that was the only case he had heard of in the Province. A law enabling officers to search persons and houses for liquor in case of a prohibitory law would be a most cumberous piece of legislation. It would also affect transcontinental travel. He had heard many men complain of how they had been treated by searchers who boarded the trains passing through the Northwest territories. He himself had a very unpleasant experience while passing through the territory. The man who woke him up on the car might have been both a "beat" and an officer, as he had heard that the officer appointed to put down the traffic usually did so to get a drink themselves. In North Dakota, a prohibition territory, the case was the same. The saloon and hotel keepers of Victoria, as a rule, are very respectable and orderly men. He had always been of opinion that the licensed houses should be regulated. There is no necessity for keeping saloons open all night. He did not think the liquor traffic affected the social life of the people of Victoria, as this is an orderly community. Neither does it affect the moral and industrial interests of the city. The liquor trade circulates and absorbs money, and, of course, all are benefitted by the circulation of money. Poverty and crime might result from excessive drinking, but that was not the fact in all cases. The adulteration of food might be regulated the same as the liquor trade. The proportion of people who are excessive drinkers in the province is very small.

Alex. Choquet, of Fort Wrangel, Alaska, had resided at Wrangel for five, and at different points on the coast for 30 years. There is a prohibition law in Alaska, but everybody has as much liquor as he wants. It is offered for sale openly. There are three saloons at Wrangel where liquors can be obtained by all. The officers try to prevent the sale of liquor, but cannot do it. The Indians make a liquor which drives them almost insane.

Mr. N. Shakespeare, postmaster, considered the present license law satisfactory as a license law. He favored prohibition, but if that was not obtainable the license system would be his second choice. He had no reason to believe that there was any illicit trade in Victoria. The people of British Columbia were, he thought, not in favor of prohibition, and if a prohibition law was passed public opinion in British Columbia would be against it. If such a law was passed the brewers and distillers should be compensated for the loss of their plants. The temperance sentiment in the province is on the increase. Since the Sunday law had been in force only two convictions had been made. There are some places in Victoria that have a perpetual license, unless some charge is brought against the holder. It was better that licensees should apply yearly for a renewal of their licenses, and that the people should say whether or not the licenses should be renewed. The liquor traffic has been against the business interests of the province, on account of the extravagance in drink. A prohibition law for the whole Dominion would be beneficial.

Sergt. J. M. Langley of the provincial police, was the next witness. His force looked after the criminal throughout the province. They attended the licensed houses throughout the rural districts of the province. The license law works well in the district. The Sunday closing law does not work well, several convictions being quashed on the bona fide traveller clause. People drive out into the district on Sunday and get all the drink they desire. They should be allowed to sell to everybody or to nobody. He was not in favor of prohibition. A prohibition law could hardly be enforced. The license law regulates the trade. There is not much drinking in the rural districts except among the Indians. They had found out how to make the liquor themselves, although there had been some convictions for selling to Indians.

Ah Mook, manager for Chu Chong & Company, had resided in Victoria for fifteen years. In Canton there is no license law. The Chinese merchants who import Chinese wine take out a license. The wine is distilled from rice. The Chinese of Victoria as well as in China, are a sober people. Very few Chinamen drink whiskey.

Rev. Dr. Campbell said that as far as he knew the license law was observed in Victoria. He is opposed to licensing and the liquor law, as it injured the

Mr. Van Horne said, in answer to a query: "I am, and have been for years, making every effort to secure the establishment of a fast Canadian Atlantic steamship service, for I regard it as a commercial necessity. Canada, in her dealings with the world at large, has been carrying on her business in an unfrequented lane instead of a conspicuous highway, and the results have been much the same as would be those of an individual conducting his business in a like manner. We have an opportunity to make our unfrequented lane a short cut, which everybody who is in a hurry, and most people are, must make use of, and that is what I am working for. Canada has been enormously benefited by making all the use possible of her advantages. We can, I believe, save a day's time with passengers and mail between Great Britain and New York."

BLAKE ON HOME RULE

He Delivers a Stirring Address to a Great Irish Audience.

DUBLIN, Nov. 17.—Hon. Edward Blake, Nationalist member for South Longford, is understood to be working daily to reconcile the McCarthy and Parnellite factions, and is hopeful of ultimate success. It is stated that some of the Parnellite leaders are willing to join hands with the anti-Parnellites under his leadership. At the county convention held in Longford for the purpose of aiding the evicted tenants, Mr. Blake stated that, during his recent visit to Canada, he found Irishmen who were formerly at variance on the question of the day again united in support of the Home Rule party, while in the United States he found men who, after the death of Mr. Parnell, had become apathetic and despondent, were fired with hope and working hard to support the national movement. In most cases he found that the feeling was more in favor of the Parnellites than otherwise, and this most particularly in the matter of sympathy towards the evicted tenants. Mr. Blake went on to say that at the time when Ireland was groaning under the effects of the coercion bill, Mr. Parnell had interviewed Mr. John Morley and had discussed at length with him the prospects of the evicted tenants. Mr. Parnell told Mr. Morley that although he was pledged not to desert the tenants, still he considered their cause subordinate to the all important question of Home Rule and that it would not be judicious to embarrass the coming Liberal government with the question of the claims of the tenants, considering that the lesser interests should be sacrificed to the greater. Mr. Blake believed that, in this conversation with Mr. Morley, Parnell showed his greatness, wisdom, patriotism and statesmanship. The action of the anti-Parnellites in not worrying the government by bringing up the tenant question in the recent session was actuated by similar ideas on their part. It was only fair, he said, to give the government time to prepare the Home Rule bill and other measures before pressing forward those of minor importance, and his belief was that, so far, the plans of the late leader had been carried out. Mr. Blake's speech is likely to have more effect toward creating harmony between the factions than any other action in that direction.

PARNELL'S WIDOW.

Her Husband Left Her Practically Nothing When He Died.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—The Irish Times to-day contains a sensational article in reference to the bankruptcy of the widow of Charles Stewart Parnell. The article states that Mrs. Parnell has been driven to insolvency by adverse circumstances, and that the step she has taken has no connection with the Paris fund. Mr. Parnell was poor when he died, and there was not enough money in his household to bury him. John Redmond, Pierce Mahoney, then M.P. for North Meath, and Timothy Harrington defrayed, by their personal contributions, the cost of the funeral. Mr. Parnell had expended £42,000 in freeing the estate at Avondale from a mortgage and the fruitless attempts to make the mines on the estate profitable. This left Mrs. Parnell with no other resource but a small annuity under the will of her deceased aunt, Miss Wood, of Eltham. Mrs. Parnell has left Brighton, being unable to sustain the cost of living there, and has taken up her residence at Red Hill.

The first chamber of the civil tribunal of the Seine will soon pass upon the question of the Irish National League funds, now in the hands of Messrs. Munroe & Co., bankers of Paris. The plaintiff in the case is Mr. Justin McCarthy, and the other side includes Mrs. Katherine Parnell, Mrs. Munroe & Co., Dr. Kenny and Mr. Harrington. In the official statement of Mr. McCarthy's case, it is set forth that in 1880 large sums were deposited at the Munroe's, No. 7, Rue Scribe, Paris, by Messrs. Parnell, McCarthy, Biggar, Egan and Kenny, on the agreement that they could be withdrawn on the signature of three of these gentlemen, of whom Mr. Parnell was always to be one.

Subsequently it was agreed that Mr. Parnell's signature alone should suffice for the withdrawal of the sums and part of the funds was so withdrawn. After the Gladstonian success at the polls in 1885, heavy subscriptions came in from America and were also deposited with Messrs. Munroe & Co., by Messrs. Parnell, Justin McCarthy and Biggar, on the understanding that two signatures would suffice to a withdrawal, one being always that of Mr. Parnell. On Mr. Biggar's death Mr. Parnell and Mr. McCarthy became the sole trustees, and these two gentlemen, in spite of the subsequent split in the national camp, agreed to remain bound by the conditions of the trust, and did in fact, in July, 1891, withdraw £5000 and placed the sum in London.

The balance of this amount was drawn by Mr. McCarthy after Mr. Parnell's death. When, however, Mr. McCarthy requested Messrs. Monroe to transfer the balance of the funds left at their bank to the joint names of himself and Messrs. Sexton and Dillon, he was an informed that an opposition had been placed upon such transfer by Mrs. Parnell, Mr. Harrington and Dr. Kenny, and that, therefore, the sums could not be transferred unless the opposition were first removed. Mr. McCarthy now moves for the removal of this opposition on the ground that the funds form no part of Mr. Parnell's estate, and that the condition under which they were deposited ought to be adhered to. The counsel engaged in the case are Maitre Clunet for Messrs. Munroe & Co., and Maitre Ambert Martin for Mrs. Parnell, Dr. Kenny and Mr. Harrington.

IN THE TYPHOON'S POWER.

Terrible Experience of the Phra Nang in the Formosa Channel

As evidencing the violence of the weather in the Formosa Channel at the time the ill-fated P. and O. steamship Bokhara was wrecked with a loss of over 100 lives, the following is taken the China Mail of the 13th:—

The Northern Pacific chartered steamer Phra Nang, which arrived this morning from Tacoma, reports having passed through the typhoon near Turnabout. On the voyage from Tacoma to Japan the Phra Nang encountered very rough weather in the Pacific and had to heave to for two nights. After leaving Kobe, she had fairly good weather until Monday morning. At four o'clock the barometer fell to 29.87, and at eight o'clock there was a light N.N.E., gale with sea coming from the same direction. Some sails were set to steady the steamer, and one heavy squall about this time split the foresail. By noon the barometer had fallen to 29.62.

It was then blowing a strong gale from N.N.E. with a high following sea. The Phra Nang, however, had a well-balanced cargo, and as she was neither too light nor too heavy she ran easily and did not ship any water. An hour later the sea got worse, and at 1:30 p.m. she shipped a heavy cross sea which smashed one of the starboard lifeboats, started the beams of the boat deck and damaged two of the boats.

At the time the gale was very strong and the sea mountainous, and the terrific squalls which struck the ship from time to time tried her sea-going qualities to the utmost. The fore-topsail was blown out of the bolt ropes and had to be cut away. The barometer continued to fall steadily, and the lowest point was reached at four o'clock, when it recorded 29.26.

Towards evening the wind was blowing with hurricane force, still from the N.N.E., and as there was a terrible sea running Captain Watton deemed it expedient to heave his ship to with her head to the wind. At 6 p.m. the wind backed to the north, and the ship was hove to on the port tack, the engines being worked as required. From this time the barometer began to rise, while the wind backed to N. by W. and afterwards to N.W.

Between 10 p.m. and 2 a.m. on Tuesday the typhoon was renewed with all its former fury, but the ship behaved splendidly and was never in any actual danger. By 6 a.m. the gale had moderated, but the sea remained as stormy almost all the way to port. During the worst weather the haze was so dense that those on board could not see further than a quarter of a mile away. No other vessels were sighted.

An Aristocratic Thief.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—It was announced in the Marlborough police court to-day, when the case of Gwyneth Maude, the 18 year old girl who was arrested on the charge of swindling Spink & Son, the jewelers, out of silver salvers and candelabra, came up, that the girl's mother had committed suicide this morning. John Baggaby, assistant to Messrs. Spink, testified about the visits of Gwyneth to the shop. The crest, which she directed to be engraved, was that of the DeMontalts, and she gave the family name of Maude. Mrs. Maude, the mother, who committed suicide, was separated from her husband and lived in an attractive residence at Hyde Park gate. The daughter had accused her mother of inciting her to steal, and this fact is supposed to have promoted the suicide. The accused girl is connected with the illustrious family of DeMontalts, whose name is Maude, the head of the family being the Earl de Montalts, who was appointed one of the speakers of the House of Lords in 1882, and has been lord in waiting to Queen Victoria.

Workingmen's Pensions.

ROME, Nov. 17.—The Government will shortly appoint a commission to consider the means of modifying the severity of the poor laws in the cases of destitution resulting from old age and inability to work. The work of the commission will be utilized by the Government also in formulating a plan of workingmen's pensions; whether or not these pensions will be regulated as in Germany, so that one-third of the burden will be borne by the state, has not been decided, but there is strong opposition among the deputies, and it is said in the cabinet also, to putting more weight upon the already inadequate resources of the State. Both the revision of the poor laws and the plan for workingmen's pensions were taken up by the Government at the earnest solicitation of the King, who has expressed the opinion that by such means the country can be most easily freed from the dangers threatened by the Anarchists and discontented laborers.

She Wants to be a Senator.

TOPEKA, KAS., Nov. 17.—The Populists and Democrats are getting wider apart over the Senatorial squabble. Judge John Martin wants the position, but the information that he received to-day that there are 35 Populist members who will stand with Mrs. Lease against the Democrats, has discouraged him. Whether these 35 will vote for Mrs. Lease is unknown, but she will have a greater influence with them, and to prevent them from going to Jerry Simpson or a Democrat she will be a candidate herself. When asked if it was possible for her to get enough votes, she said, "Anything is possible with God and the farmers of Kansas." A. Williams of the Union Pacific Railway said to-day: "I see no constitutional reason why Mrs. Lease should not be a senator. There is nothing to prevent it but the popular idea that a senator should be a man. I hope she will be elected; she would keep the senators busy if they sent her to Washington.

INTESTATE ESTATES.

TO THE EDITOR:—Your correspondent "Publicolle" in his communication upon the above subject, winds up by stating "that it is high time more publicity should be given as to what is done with the property of those dying intestate." Just so, that's what's the matter. The government, as the custodians of such funds, have no right to hold it as if their own, and mix it up and use it as ordinary revenue, but should stand possessed of it as a sacred trust, and in such a manner that on application information could be at once given with regard to it, in fact, in such business like form that the ledger with its Dr. and Cr. would show amounts received and how dealt with. The government, in holding this delicate position so open to danger if not jealously guarded, inasmuch as "dead men tell no tales," should have everything open as the day, without any possible shadow for doubt, for in this particular matter "Cæsar's wife should be above suspicion." The proposition of your correspondent "that an annual statement should be advertised, showing the names of intestates, where supplied from and the amounts in hand," is a step in the right direction, and I believe was so ordered at last meeting of the Legislature, but it has never appeared. This alone would be a good beginning in other matters following.

JUNIUS.

BISHOP HILLS' SUCCESSOR.

TO THE EDITOR:—In my communication yesterday in regard to the above, a sentence reads about Dean Carmichael that "he is not too liberal minded to be a crank in any respect." The little word "not" makes a deal of difference. Whether it was a slip of the pen or the printer I cannot say, but all who know the Dean will see the unintentional wrong that has been done him by the misprint. A.

Will Make It a Crime.

It is understood that President-elect Grover Cleveland will, in his first message to Congress, recommend that the constitution of the United States be amended to make it a crime for a man to bet his whiskers, beard or moustache on the elections of the future, or make any organ-grinding or wheel-barrow wagers. The people are tired of them and want a change.

Only Taking a "Pal" Home.

Samuel Lewis and David Ross had a drunken brawl on Store street yesterday morning. This was the story of the police officer who arrested them. Samuel Lewis said he was not fighting David Ross. Ross was drunk and Lewis was trying to take him home. Case remanded till to-morrow.

The Lash for Wife Beaters.

TRENTON, N. J., Nov. 18.—Considerable surprise was caused in the court room of the Mercer court yesterday afternoon when the grand jury, in returning indictments, made a presentation in which they recommended the establishment of a whipping post as a means of punishment for wife beaters. The presentment says that this has been tried in other states and found to have served a good purpose.

THE OLYMPIC CLUB CHANGES.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 17.—Charles Noel has resigned the presidency of the Olympic Club, to take a like position with the Crescent City Athletic club, which has secured the Hall-Fitzsimmons fight for a purse of $60,000. Jas. L. Short, vice-president and chairman of the contest committee, and Captain F. Williams, matchmaker, have also resigned. Chas. Dixon was elected last night as president of the Olympic club.

MUST BE IN NEW ORLEANS.

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—The Illustrated News received the following dispatch from its St. Louis correspondent to-day: Fred Watkins, who is going to put up half the $10,000 stake money for Charley Mitchell to fight Jim Corbett, says that if he is allowed to have his way, Mitchell will fight nowhere but in New Orleans. He says that the English champion himself objects to fighting outside of the Crescent City, because he knows he will get a square deal there. Watkins has received a letter from Mitchell, in which the Englishman states that President Noel and his associates in the Crescent City club are good enough for him, as they would not stand any bulldozing from a mob. Watkins says the Coney Island Athletic club will not get the match under any circumstances.

CORBETT'S LATE MANAGER.

Edward Thurnear, in advance of William A. Brady's "After Dark" Company, was in the city last evening. The company is to be here on Nov. 30th. Mr. Thurnear managed the last tour of "Jim" Corbett before the fight with Sullivan, and is one of his greatest admirers. He won $3500 on the fight. To a TIMES man he said last evening: "Corbett will not fight until his theatrical contracts are filled. Then if Mitchell is willing he will fight him, and after that Peter Jackson will be accommodated. Corbett will defeat them both. I do not believe that Mitchell will fight unless our stakes are double his. In other words, he wants a 2 to 1 proposition. Corbett is making money in the theatrical work, and do not laugh when I tell you he is becoming quite a good actor. People are surprised when they see him. He will not be a prize fighter very long. He recently purchased a piece of land at Asbury Park, where he trained. He paid $22,000 for it, and is going to fit up a splendid gymnasium and training grounds. It will be made a sort of athletic headquarters. Corbett himself will do some instructing. There he will most likely settle down. He is independent now as to this world's goods."

Swindling the Bucolics.

HOULTON, Me., Nov. 17.—A black-eyed, handsomely dressed woman of 30, giving her name as Annie Murphy, has recently been in Aroostook county, searching, she said, for her long lost father, whom she said she had traced to that locality. She came from Tacoma, Wash., and was plentifully supplied with cashier's cheques from the First National Bank of Tacoma. These cheques amounted to $475 and were accepted by the bank in this town, and the citizens took them for small sums. Then the woman disappeared. Yesterday a telegram was received from Tacoma saying that the cheques were counterfeit. Telegrams from Minneapolis say such cheques have been passed there. Annie Murphy is also wanted for passing bogus drafts on the Chase National Bank of New York and St. Cloud, Minn. She is said to be a stepdaughter of Hon. Andrew McCrae, of Minneapolis, and the New York authorities believe she is one of a gang of swindlers.

EXTRACTS FROM THE "CONSOLIDATED HEALTH BY-LAW."

No person shall place on any land or in or upon any street, road, or highway, any manure or other refuse matter, or any dirt or filth which is or is likely to become, a nuisance.

No person shall convey or cause to be conveyed through any street, road, or highway, any night-soil, swill, or other filth or offensive matter dangerous to health, between the hours of six in the morning and twelve in the evening, or at any time except in a proper covered cart or vehicle, so as to prevent slopping or spilling.

THE WARSPITE VERDICT.

The great majority of those who have watched the course of the Warspite inquiry believe that Captain Lambton and Staff-Commander Bawden did not deserve the reprimand which resulted from it. It would not always be safe to trust to the revision of a court-martial's finding by public opinion, but in this case we have no hesitation in concurring with the view of the outsiders. At the bottom of the general objection to the verdict is the feeling that two efficient and careful officers have got into trouble by trusting implicitly to the Admiralty chart, and that therefore they have to bear the blame of a fault committed by others. They were censured, apparently, on the ground that they did not observe the rule laid down in the "Notes bearing on the navigation of H. M. ships," requiring officers to give a wide berth to rocky shores and to assume that all such shores are foul unless they are actually known to be clear. What should be considered sufficient knowledge in such a case, if the Admiralty directions are to be set down as insufficient? The two officers of the Warspite, however, had something more than the chart as evidence that they were following a safe course; that is, the fact that vessels have for years been passing the same point at varrying distances without finding any obstruction. From the evidence it would appear that they were taking an extra precaution by keeping further away from the point than vessels usually do. From the experience of other navigators and from the soundings marked on the chart, one cable's length from the point would seem to be a perfectly safe course; wherefore it should be fair to adjudge that the Warspite's officers were doing all that was required to ensure safety. It looks as though they were observing the rule quoted above and were giving the rocky shore a fairly "wide berth." Evidently if they had not taken the extra precaution they would have escaped the shoal on which they ran. Under such circumstances a reprimand based on the finding that they were guilty of default seems to the ordinary observer quite undeserved. It may be remarked that the wreck of the Howe was, from latest reports, due to a defect in the Admiralty chart similar to that which caused the Warspite accident. The reef on which she ran, off the harbor of Ferrol, had escaped the hydrographer's attention, and her commander seems to have paid the penalty of accepting the chart as accurate. The circumstances being so much alike, it will be of interest to note whether the finding of the Howe courtmartial coincides with that on the Warspite accident. In any event, the occurrence of these two disasters will be apt to cause a serious loss of confidence in the accuracy of the Admiralty charts.

THE BYE-ELECTIONS.

The Montreal Gazette has been "figuring" on the results of the bye-elections for the House of Commons held since the date of the general election last year. Out of 50 seats the Conservatives have retained 21, lost one and gained 19, while the Liberals have retained only nine and gained only one from the Government. The net result appears to afford much gratification to the Gazette, and our good neighbor the Colonist takes much comfort from it also. It goes even further than the Gazette and takes the liberty to doubt whether there is a Liberal party left in the Dominion. Far be it from us to attempt to lessen the comfort taken by our contemporaries out of the bye-elections and the present state of the parties. On the contrary we advise them to rejoice in in the present situation to the utmost of their ability, because a time is coming when they will find little to comfort them. There were many bye-elections during the life of the last parliament, and most of them were decided against the Liberals, yet when the general election came the Government had an exceedingly narrow escape. The condition of the people has not improved since that time; in fact, whatever change has come about is for the worse. He must be a superficial observer indeed who does not detect among the Canadian people a decided feeling of discontent, very much like that which caused the "landslide" of 1878, and also strongly akin to the dissatisfaction which caused the recent Republican disaster among our neighbors. Perhaps it is true that the Liberal party has been scattered to the winds as a result of the reverses in the bye-elections, but we shall confess ourselves grievously mistaken if the revolt against high taxation and restriction does not change the face of the situation when next the people go to the polls. The Government organs do well in the meantime to congratulate themselves on the small successes achieved by their party.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Jerusalem has been awakened from its slumber of many centuries by the shriek of the locomotive. It has a "new and flourishing" flour mill, situated close to the Damascus gate and near what is supposed to have been the hill of Calvary. This mill, we are further told, is lighted by electricity. No wonder the Jews and Arabs are somewhat startled by all these innovations. People who desire to see the place as it has stood these many years, would do well to hasten their visits, for the modernizing process will probably be a rapid one.

During the election campaign of last year the Government and its friends used the live stock trade with Great Britain as one of their chief arguments against unrestricted reciprocity. The farmers of Eastern Canada were told over and over again that the adoption of this policy would mean the termination of Canada's privilege of landing her cattle alive. The farmers naturally recall this argument to mind now that Canadada has been scheduled. And this was not the only argument with a false basis used by the Government in that campaign.

The appointment of Dr. Geo. H. Duncan to the position of municipal health officer, vacated by the resignation of Dr. Milne, seems to give general satisfaction. Even the Colonist compliments the council on its wisdom in making the selection. Dr. Duncan is young and energetic, and will, we are convinced, fill the position to the satisfaction of the public. The office is not a sinecure, although its incumbent may feel disposed to "take it easy" when the city is free from disease. To our mind, "in time of peace prepare for war," would be a good motto for the health officer and council to adopt. The city is still without a contagious disease hospital. Dr. Duncan's first duty will be to prove to the mayor and council that every facility must be provided for handling contagious diseases, in order that epidemics may be prevented. To this end it may be advisable to place the sanitary officer under Dr. Duncan's direction.

A Japanese contemporary gives some interesting statistics in regard to the population of the Mikado's empire. At the end of last year the populations of the chief cities were as follows:—

	Males.	Females.	Total.	Houses.
Tokyo	579,012	570,999	1,150,011	347,609
Kyoto	440,729	441,866	882,615	184,845
Osaka	606,596	610,074	1,216,670	263,759
Kanagawa Ken	464,084	452,518	962,601	179,237
Hyogo Ken	789,372	765,325	1,554,697	313,156
Nagasaki Ken	376,190	377,870	754,060	149,176
Niigata Ken	875,112	873,400	1,748,512	294,330

The population of the entire empire was 20,563,416 males and 20,155,261 females, total 40,718,677, living in 7,806,369 houses. These were classified as follows: Nobles, 3844 (of whom 598 were heads of houses) and 3246 families; shizoku 2,009,396 (of whom 430,383 were heads of houses) and 1,579,013 families; heimin 38,705,437 (of whom 7,829,236 were heads of houses) and 50,870,533 families. There were 4631 foundlings and 1037 unregistered persons in the various prisons. The total population shows an increase of 265,216, and the number of houses an increase of 317 on the figures of the previous year. From the figures it does not appear that Japan's population is increasing very fast. It may also be noted that the males and females are very nearly equal in number, both in the cities and in the empire at large.

Wolffe in the Toils.

Chief of Police Sheppard has telegraphed the police authorities of San Francisco, stating that Wolffe, alias Waldeck, the embezzler, has been arrested and asking for instructions. At the time of going to press no reply has been received. Another telegram has also been sent to Khan & Co., of San Francisco, the victims of Wolffe. The case is in the hands of Lawyer Mills. The warrant only charges $500 embezzlement, but his defalcations will foot up considerably more. The police will arrive in the city by the Islander this evening with their prisoner.

ROYAL LIQUOR INQUIRY.

community. He certainly thought it wrong to drink. The public sentiment seems to be tending towards prohibition. The Scott act did not work well in Ontario. During the Scott act period a great deal of liquor was sold. He would prefer the license system to the Scott act, because under the Scott act drinks are sold in low places; back rooms, etc. This is not the case under the license law. The public sentiment was not sufficiently strong to carry out the Scott act. In some of the Ontario counties the condition of affairs was better after the repeal of the Scott act. The safety of a community does not lie so much in the law as in the church. The church is not helped by legalizing the drink traffic. If the public are not in favor of a law, it is hard for the officers to carry out the law. The officers of the law generally carry out the law if backed by public opinion. A prohibition law would be beneficial to the country. A great deal of the poverty and misery can be attributed to drink. He did not think that a prohibition law could be carried out at present, although the temperance sentiment is on the increase. A law violated always weakens the conscience and the community. The people of Ontario looked upon the Scott Act as a failure, and when they saw that it could not be enforced they repealed it. During the five months that he had resided in Victoria, he had seen less drunkenness than he had seen in any other town during the same time.

Rev. Coverdale Watson of the Pandora Avenue Methodist church, had an opportunity of observing the license law in Victoria and New Westminster. It worked well as a license law. He was against the unrestricted sale of liquor and in favor of prohibition. However, if the people forced him to license he would not think it wrong to do so. He would not favor remuneration to brewers and distillers in case of destruction of their plants. The temperance sentiment has increased wonderfully in the province. Eleven years ago there was hardly a temperance society, now they are many and strong. He was of opinion that the majority of the people were against the liquor traffic. The drink habit has a very bad effect upon the people, regarding morals, the habits of home, etc. He had seen young men by the score ruined here by drink. They have the chances to get drink here as elsewhere.

Mr. A. L. Belyea was inspector under the McCarthy act in New Brunswick. The Scott act was then in force. The first difficulties of the Scott act and the McCarthy act were the legal points. It was never his good fortune to see the Scott act enforced. There was a very weak public opinion behind the act and the people came to the opinion that the law could not be enforced. The license law is much better enforced here than the Scott act was enforced. The regulations of the license law are obeyed very well here. During the time he was police magistrate very few cases of violation of the law came before him. Prohibition is entirely impracticable in this country. He thought a great many people were in favor of prohibition, but they would not put themselves out to see it enforced. It would be more difficult to enforce a prohibition law in British Columbia than in any other province. If a prohibition law was enforced the government should compensate the brewers and distillers for their loss. A law that was frequently broken was productive of evil.

Dr. Lewis Hall, dentist, was in favor of prohibition on principle. Alcohol is a poison and its use should be restricted. He knew that the Scott Act was enforced in Oakville, Ontario. The prohibition sentiment is increasing wonderfully in this province. A great many accidents happened and many men go to the dogs through drink. The drink habit was more general in British Columbia a few years ago than it was in Eastern Canada. He did not know of any country where prohibition was in force, therefore if introduced here it would be a new thing.

Rev. J. E. Coombes of the Calvary Baptist church had lived in Illinois where the local option system prevailed. Some of the senators and congressmen of the United States are of opinion that the prohibition law is enforced. In Kansas the law is very strictly enforced and a man has to be a sneak to obtain a drink. In Emporia, Kansas, a man who broke the prohibition law was looked down upon by the respectable members of the community.

Rev. Mr. Coombes thought the prohibition laws as enforced in Kansas, Iowa and Maine would meet the demand for prohibition.

Mr. C. D. Smith had resided in Kamloops. Kamloops was used as a distributing point for liquor for the Northwest Territories. When the Sunday closing came into force men were made sneaks. In Victoria, although the saloons were allowed to remain open all night, only four saloons took advantage of the privilege. It would be literally impossible to enforce a prohibition law here. They could not prevent smuggling, no more than they could prevent opium smuggling. There is more drunkenness in Toronto on Sunday than there is in Victoria on any week day.

The commission adjourned at 1:30 to meet in Nanaimo on Monday morning.

B. C. MERCANTILE AGENCY.

Recapitulation of the Principal Facts in This Now Celebrated Cause.

Hon. Messrs. Justices Crease and Drake sat to-day as a Divisional Court and gave judgment in the case of —— vs. Giles. This was an appeal from the decision of the Chief Justice, given on the 25th of August last, dismissing a motion to dissolve an injunction granted by him on the 30th of July, restraining the B. C. Mercantile Agency from publishing the name of the plaintiff in a certain yellow poster. The facts are as follows: The defendant had printed a large yellow poster containing the names of about 38 well-known Victorians, with alleged debts of small amounts set opposite their names as due per "Druggists' Bill," "Grocers' Bill," etc., and announcing a sale of such debts by a certain day if not paid in full before that date. A copy of the poster was sent to the plaintiff on July 20th, with a circular as follows:

"Office of the British Columbia Mercantile Agency, 16 Broad Street, Victoria.

Dear Sir—Enclosed find sample poster; you may still have your name lifted by paying the amount on or before the 27th inst., after which date the posters will positively be issued.

The object of advertising this and other claims for sale is that in default of payment by the debtors of the amount due by them in full, the largest possible amount may be realized by their creditors from the claims, and for no other purpose: Yours truly,

THE B.C. MERCANTILE AGENCY."

Thereupon the plaintiff applied to the court for an injunction which was granted as above stated.

His Lordship Mr. Justice Crease read a lengthy decision, reviewing all the facts of the case and analyzing and commenting on the numerous authorities quoted by Mr. Belyea for the agency and Mr. Walls for the plaintiff. The case was very important as it affected nearly everyone in the community. It was worthy of note that there was no affidavit from Giles himself; there was one from Mr. Church, the secretary of the agency, and one from Mr. Shotbolt, the creditor. No effort had been made to collect the amount (which amounted only to the small sum of $9.75) through the mediums of the courts of law or by the regular methods sanctioned by the Legislature; it was merely a private process, and a most reprehensible one at that, for superseding the public tribunals. The correctness of the amount was not the question at this stage; that was a matter to be considered at the trial and not at the time of granting an injunction. The cases cited by the defence were inapplicable to the present case. His Lordship then reviewed, one by one, the cases relied upon by both sides and showed wherein they differed from that which the court had now to deal. Perhaps the latest judgment on the matter in a case which very closely resembled this case was that in Green vs. Minnes, 22 Ont., Report 180. Armour, C. J., in giving judgment, said: "We think that reasonable men reading this poster would understand from it that the debtors referred to therein were persons from whom the accounts they were therein alleged to owe could not be collected by process of law, and were insolvent or dishonest debtors. Being so understood by reasonable men, this poster would have the effect of bringing discredit upon the debtors mentioned therein and of lowering them in the estimation of their neighbors, and would consequently be libelous." And Street, J., "concurred in the remarks of the Chief Justice as to the reprehensible nature of the means employed by the defendants for the collection of the debt. It is a matter of surprise to find in the evidence a statement that a number of traders and business men had deliberately resolved to descend to such a device."

His Lordship remarked that in a civilized community, which keeps in view above all things law and order, all the effect desired in a case such as this could be obtained by law and in an orderly manner, and in was not necessary to resort to any method which might lead to bloodshed or a breach of the peace. His Lordship then dismissed the appeal with costs.

His Lordship Mr. Justice Drake dissented from the judgment of Mr. Justice Crease. It was true that in this case the creditor himself had not offered to sell the debt by auction and there was nothing before the court to show that he had assigned the debt to Giles. Yet the real question was not whether the defendant had a legal right to do what he did, but whether the court should exercise an extraordinary power and grant an injunction in this case, when the authorities proved that in such cases injunctions were granted only in trade libels and then only when the libellous nature of the statement complained of had been clearly proved.

After reviewing the authorities his lordship sustained the appeal, costs to be costs in the cause.

Twenty more unemployed were put to work on the streets to-day. There is a large force now employed, but the number standing around the city hall daily and asking for employment does not perceptibly diminish. An alderman says there are over 100 mere unemployed laborers.

Quarterly Temperance Sermon.

The regular quarterly temperance sermon will be preached on Sunday evening by the Rev. Mr. Coombes, in Calvary Baptist church. The subject will be, "The liquor traffic of the United States." Members of the different orders are expected to meet at 6:40 in the school room, and are expected to wear their badges.

Rumors of Rain.

It was whispered around town this morning, somehow or other, that some rain had fallen. The entire staff of the TIMES was detailed to look up this horrible matter, but up to the hour of going to press the rumor had not been confirmed. There was a little mist here and there about town, and some evidence of rain—mud—around the new Davie building, but that was all. It is to be hoped that it is not so.

The Dunsmuir Party.

Nearly three hundred couples enjoyed the ball given last night in Assembly Hall by Mrs. Dunsmuir and Mrs. James Dunsmuir. The affair was a very brilliant one and was thoroughly enjoyed by all the participants. The hall was beautifully decorated with flowers, evergreens, bunting, etc. The refection served during the evening was of the choicest description. It was far on in the morning when the last dance was finished.

Wade and Say Nothing.

The houses on Superior street near the corner of Oswego street are surrounded by water and the Superior street cars go running merrily through several yards of water. The residents have temporary bridges built from their door steps to the street, and gum boots are at a premium. This state of affairs existed last year, and the Board of Aldermen, wishing to do away with the nuisance brought forward a by-law to authorize the borrowing of money to build a drain on this and other streets. But the people said nay, and now the residents of Superior street are making a vigorous kick. But things cannot be changed this year as the law says another by-law cannot be brought forward, so the people of Superior street will have to wade and say nothing.

Blame it on the Vodka.

Captain De Levron, of the Russian cruiser Zabiaka, has been talking very freely for publication since he reached San Francisco. During one of his interviews he made the amusing statement that "the arrested men (meaning the sealers) were too glad to escape without punishment to care to put in a protest or appeal to their home governments for aid in securing indemnity." Captain De Levron and his government will, before long, discover that that statement is untrue. A fact that is not generally known is that De Levron was severely injured during his famous cruise this summer and fall. On September 1st, during a storm he was thrown from the bridge of the Zabiaka and has not yet recovered from his injuries. The Russian government should immediately condemn the brands of vodka supplied to the Zabiaka this season.

Theatrical Echoes.

Victoria will surely hear the Duff opera company one night and probably for two. Manager Duff has accepted the terms of the local management for one night, Nov. 28, and has now been made an equally good offer for two nights. "A Trip to Africa" will be given the first night and if the company remain two nights "Cavaleria Rusticana," Mascadni's masterpiece, will be presented the second night. The latter is the latest operatic success. The company is composed of 60 people and has been greatly praised all along the coast.

Another "date" is Alexander Salvini, the younger, who comes early in December. This grand young actor, upon whose shoulders seems to have fallen the mantle of Booth, Barrett, Forrest and McCulloch, will be seen in one of the great plays, and in some part worthy of his magnificent reputation. A very fine portrait of Salvini can be seen in Jamieson's south window.

NEITHER LAW NOR PRACTICE.

Dr. Davie was shown the communication of Dr. Milne to the city council charging Dr. Davie with negligence in not reporting cases of smallpox at the outbreak of the recent epidemic. And he was requested to tell his side of the story.

He said: "It is true that I treated a few cases of smallpox when the epidemic first made its appearance. And it is true that I did not report to Dr. Milne, then medical health officer of the city. Why? There was then no law compelling the reporting of cases of smallpox, or any other contagious disease. And if there was such a law, I did not know of its existence. Moreover, I, in common with other medical men had treated numbers of cases of contagious diseases and never reported. And why should I go and report these cases to Dr. Milne? It was not a practice to report contagious diseases, and if Dr. Milne wished them reported should he not have asked the medical men to report? I do not see that medical men should put themselves out to help Dr. Milne in his official duties."

"Diphtheria and scarlet fever might decimate the community a great deal more than ever has smallpox. But there is nothing said of physicians reporting these diseases. They were not reported and they are both more deadly than smallpox. Smallpox can be prevented. Diphtheria and scarlet fever cannot. I do not wish to convey the impression that I do not favor the reporting of contagious diseases. I think they should be reported. But I maintain that there is no law to that effect, the recent smallpox regulations excepted. These regulations compel the reporting of cases of smallpox. And, if I remain Provincial Health Officer, I will try and obtain a general provincial law requiring the reporting of all contagious diseases. It is not for me to make suggestions as to the health of the city of Victoria. The medical health officer is supposed to advise in these matters, and I think it to be his duty to see that the city is protected by such provisions.

"It is all bosh for Dr. Milne to talk about one being ignorant of sanitary science. Professional etiquette prevents me from speaking, else, I might tell something of the sanitary science of Dr. Milne. I will not say any more. I do not care to be washing dirty linen through the papers. But it is almost forced upon me."

The Warspite Inquiry.

Following is the full text of the finding of the courtmartial on the Warspite accident:—

The court finds that H.M.S. Warspite was stranded on an unknown rock off a point midway between Race point and Orange point, Discovery passage, Vancouver Island, on August 10.

The court finds the charge of negligence against the said Captain, the Hon. Hedworth Lambton, and against the said Staff-Commander, Clifford Bawden, not proven.

The court finds the charge of default against the said Captain, the Hon. Hedworth Lambton, and against the said Staff-Commander, Clifford Bawden, is proven, inasmuch as due attention was not paid to the caution contained in the official copy of "Notes bearing on the navigation of H.M. Ships," third edition, 1892.

The court therefore adjudges him, the said Captain, the Hon. Hedworth Lambton, and the said Staff-Commander, Clifford Bawden, to be reprimanded.

Signed by Captains Craigie, Parr and May, Commanders Huntingford and McArthur, and Mr. Chapple, judge advocate.

Cement Works.

F. G. Jordan is succeeding better than he expected in proving the superiority of the material found within a few miles of Victoria, for the manufacture of "Portland cement." The cement is being subjected to the customary tensile and crushing tests employed by the Government in public works, and before anything is done toward establishing permanent works, the qualities of the cement will be established beyond all question. Mr. Jordan has been engaged in the business in the cement districts of England and is very hopeful of the possibilities here. The industry is one of the safest and most remunerative in the Old Country, and the demand is constantly increasing.

Accidental Shooting.

A sergeant of marines of H.M.S. Warspite had his hand badly hurt yesterday afternoon by a gun shot. He was out duck shooting with three companions, one of whom was passing a gun to the sergeant. The gun was cocked, and the trigger catching, the cartridge went off. The sergeant's arm was filled with shot. He was taken on board the Warspite last evening, where the wound was dressed, and afterwards to the naval hospital.

MINISTER THOMPSON.

D. P. Thompson, of Portland, Oregon, named by President for the U. S. Ministry to Turkey, is one of the originals, of whom there are only a few left and they are going fast. He was sent out to Oregon as surveyor-general by Abraham Lincoln. Thompson was a man who always looked carefully out for number one, and while surveying Oregon he appropriated for Mr. D. P. Thompson vast tracts of the finest land. He would think nothing of claiming for himself a whole valley; river, meadows, forests and all. In this way he made a very complete survey of the whole territory. Somebody was talking to Mr. Lincoln one day in the White House and Thompson's name was mentioned in connection with his land-grabbing proclivities. "Oh, yes," said the President pleasantly, "Thompson; regular genius for aggrandisement; they tell me he is monarch of all he surveys."

Thompson has amassed a fortune of about $3,000,000, largely invested in banking interests in Portland. He is "close" in some ways. For instance, early in the 80's he made a tour of the world, during which he made a collection of coins valued at, probably, $10,000. Yet it is said that during the entire trip he wore the same hat, a weather-beaten old derby, which at last reports he was still wearing. This fact gave rise to the saying, and later, the song "Where did you get that hat?" He ran for governor a year or so ago against Sylvester Pennoyer, who lately bolted the Cleveland ticket, and was snowed under. He has always been a hard driver in a financial deal, and being in that well known coterie of Portland capitalists has, it is said, never been "taken in" in a transaction of any importance. He is well along in life but is still a hard worker. His hobby is coin collecting, and he is one of the most enthusiastic numismatists in the States. His collection is very extensive and valuable.

EDWIN ARNOLD'S NEW PLAY.

And Will First be Produced in Chicago During the Columbian Exposition.

The news that Sir Edwin Arnold has written a play founded on Japanese legend and intended to be produced at the World's Fair has excited much interest here. It is impossible to get any extracts from the drama, which is copyrighted in Washington, but Mr. Deakin, who superintended the publication of "The Light of the World," has kindly allowed your correspondent to see the notes of the plot prepared by Sir Edwin himself. Here is the poet's introduction to "The Story of Adzuma," which gives the motive of the play:

"This true, tender, noble, pathetic story, by all its incidents in the highest degree dramatic and heart-stirring, has never yet been told in English, although for so many years popular in Japan. Those scholars who have given to the western world other famous pieces from Japanese history, have either feared to deal with the tragic particulars of the tale or have not found access to good versions of it. The present author has spared no pains to obtain full narratives, and has written his play with the double purpose of composing a literary work in dramatic form, worthy if it may be of the beautiful heroine, who is a pure and true type of the highest Japanese womanhood, and also of supplying for the modern English and American stage a tragedy in all respects 'actable' and illustrating with close fidelity the manners and motives of the Japanese people.

"A strong Buddhist 'birth story' forms a background of my story to the facts that compose the play. Adzuma, also called Kesa Gozen, lived in the reign of Yori Mato, the great shojun of Japan, in Kioto, the former capital of the empire.

BEGAN LIFE AS A SERPENT.

"Her first life was that of a serpent and she was instinctively drawn to Koro Nogawa, who afterwards bore her as a woman child, and for her sake helped kill the eagle Yamato, which eagle was afterwards born a man called Morito. Thus the destiny of the two were fatally linked. Here ends the mystery and begin the facts. Morito's parents dying, he is left to the guardianship of Dozen and afterward of his son Kameja. The play illastrates the fidelity of these retainers, a characteristic of medieval Japan. Guided by a dream, Adzuma weds a knight, Wataru Watanake, and dwells with him in happiness, never having known Morito, for whom she had been vainly asked in marriage.

"Morito passes his days in knightly exercises at the Shojuns court. Now the villain, a crafty, designing friend of Morito, by Sakemune, secretly envies and hates Morito, and still more Adzuma and her husband. The method of Sakemune's hatred is largely traceable to the lovely Adzuma. Knowing that the woman's virtue is as impregnable as her beauty is irresistable, Sakemune lays traps and snares to entangle her with Morito. The young knight it instantly enamored of Adzuma, but resists his passion. Sakemune tells him of the bitter wrong done by his aunt, Adzuma's mother, in rejecting Morito, and adds an element of hatred. "The villain contrives another meeting and makes Morito believe that Adzuma has fallen in love with him. A generous deed of the husband arouses Morito's better nature and he puts aside his unholy love, or thinks he does. Morito rescues the husband, Wataru, from robbers and the beautiful wife is innocently grateful to her husband's rescuer. The wicked Sakemune alters a verse which Adzuma has written about the beauty of the landscape and suspends it to a maple tree, making it appear that she has expressed dislike for her husband.

RESULT OF THE VILLAIN'S PLOT.

"This makes Morito cast conscience to the winds. He denounces his aunt, Adzuma's mother, and threatens to kill her unless she procures a meeting with Adzuma and favors his illicit suit. Indignant, but alarmed, the mother sends for Adzuma, who comes innocently to meet the passionate lover. This is one of the thrilling scenes of the play. Morito pleads his passion furiously. Adzuma repudiates the villain's forgery, but Sakemune has forged another letter which Morito now produces. Convinced of her daughter's infidelity, Koro Nogawa strikes her. Afraid that Morito will kill her mother and perceiving that there is no way save one by which she can extricate honor, she comes to a silent and sublime resolution.

"She agrees to give herself to Morito, but he must first kill her husband. She arranges the murder. Morito is to enter her house stealthily at night. She will wash her lord's hair so that he may know it in the dark by its being wet, and he must cut off her lord's head and take it away. Then she will grant his desires. Morito accepts, with sleeves pushed back and naked sword in hand he enters the apartment, finds the sleeping form and strikes off the wetted head. Hurrying to view his ghastly trophy, he rolls from the cloth the head of his dear love, the beautiful Adzuma. She has lulled her master to sleep, wetted her own head and laid down to die to prove her honor and save her husband and mother. On the bloody pillow is a letter, tender, true and noble, explaining it all.

"Morito, grief stricken, implores the husband to put him to death. Wataru refuses and the two become Buddhist priests. Kameta, the lover's guard and retainer, kills the villian and the pure spirit of Adzuma is seen in a dream by Wataru, ascending to the world of the purified."

DIVIDED INTO FOUR ACTS.

The play is in four acts, with from four to eight scenes in each. There are twelve principal characters and an army of warriors, retainers, attendants and priests. The third act is devoted to a tea party in high life, which permits the introduction of geisha, or dancing girls and jugglers. The scene is laid in Tokio and the time about 1200 A.D.

Sir Edwin first heard the legend on which the play is founded at a party in Tokio, where it was told him by Ammenermoi, the most distinguished linguist of Japan. Arnold was so struck with the heroism of Adzuma that he had the ancient records searched and secured the original version, with every scrap of original detail. He also secured photographs of the scene of Adzuma's tragic death, as well as other scenes of the play, and had them colored. These, with colored plates of the costumes of the period, will furnish the scene-painter and costumer with ample hints.

The drama is written in blank verse, interspersed with lyrics. Sir Edwin will arrive in this country next month and will superintend the production of the play, which he wishes brought out during the World's Fair in Chicago.—Special San Francisco Letter.

FOUGHT TO A FINISH.

A Deadly Contest Between a Blacksnake and a Bullsnake.

Last summer, while crossing a ford on the Smoky Hill, near my home in Central Kansas, my attention was attracted by a strange, rustling noise proceeding from a patch of sunflower stalks and weeds on the edge of the stream. I stopped my horse, looked carefully around, without distinguishing anything until I dismounted, and cautiously walked to the spot from whence the curious sound issued. There, to my astonishment, I saw two snakes of considerable size, one of which was chasing the other with great swiftness through the thinly scattered herbage.

The aggressor was a black water-snake, about six feet long, the other a common "bullsnake," resembling the "rattle" in color, but perfectly harmless. The bullsnake was nearly the same length as his antagonist, though of greater diameter. In a few moments they met, and in the fury of the first encounter, appeared tied together in a hard knot. While in this squeezed and cramped condition, they lashed the ground with their tails, all the time darting their tongues out and in so rapidly that I could scarcely see that curiously forked organ, as they essayed with open jaws to seize each other. They continued to thus writhe and twist for fully five minutes, when the blacksnake managed to disengage himself and hurriedly started for the river. The bullsnake, upon this movement of his antagonist, instantly assumed a half-crawling, half-erect position, and chased and overtook the blacksnake before it reached the water. At this juncture, as the bullsnake commenced to fight again, the blacksnake resisted with all its power. It was a remarkable scene, for they now fought with their jaws, biting and tearing each other with the utmost rage. Notwithstanding the courage of the blacksnake in so bravely standing up to his heavier opponent, he appeared very anxious to get into the water, his native element, and began to retreat toward the river again. The bullsnake evidently understood this action of the blacksnake, for he then twisted his tail twice around a dried sunflower stock, to get a good brace, quickly seized his antagonist by wrapping his own neck twice around that of the blacksnake, jerking him back from the river bank. To get even, the blacksnake now twisted his tail around another sunflower stock, and by the acquisition of that point of resistance became a fair match for his thicker and more muscular opponent.

Here commenced the most exciting phase of the strange contest. Two relatively great snakes strongly adhering to the ground, fastened together by means of their own writhings, firmly lashed as if tied by a cord, stretched out their whole length, pulling with all their strength, but in vain. In the moment of their greatest efforts, that portion of their bodies which was entwined seemed extremely attenuated by the awful strain, while the remainder appeared swollen, and, as now and then they jerked each other, was convulsed with strong undulations rapidly succeeding. Their eyes seemed on fire, ready to start from their sockets with rage. At one time I thought the conflict ended; the blacksnake by an extraordinary effort succeeding in bending itself into two great folds, pulling the bullsnake to its utmost limit of tension until I believed it must break in the middle, so small had the awful stretching made him appear. In a moment, however, the bullsnake recovered himself, gaining an immense advantage; he twisted himself into two great folds, as had the blacksnake, and with his superior muscular force, pulled the blacksnake out to a remarkably attenuated condition.

These tactics alternated; victory seemed doubtful, inclining sometimes to one side, again to the other. I was on the point of leaving, tired of the wonderfully equal struggle, when the sunflower-talk to which the blacksnake was fastened broke, and he fell into the river, dragging the bull-snake in after him. They soon reappeared on the surface, twisted together as before, but the blacksnake now had a decided advantage. He had his head exactly above his antagonist, was at home, so to speak. He began to press the bullsnake's head down, holding it under the water. This he succeeded in doing until it was drowned and sunk. The victor soon perceived its enemy incapable of further resistance, abandoned his body to the current, swam away and disappeared under the muddy bank.—Detroit Free Press.

Setting Type With Both Hands.

A foreman of a composing room has conceived the idea of using both hands in picking up and setting the types in the stick. Ever since the composing stick was known the left hand has held the stick while the thumb pressed each successive type into place against the pieces already in line. A one armed compositor came to the foreman's room and with a single hand set almost as much type as his fellow-laborers did with two.

After thinking this over the foreman worked out two inventions, by which he proposes to use both hands at once. The first is a little mechanical device for taking the place of the thumb, and the second is an attachment by which the stick can be put in a convenient position for receiving the type without being in the way of any subsequent operations.

Having got so far, the foreman found that his next step was to train his left hand. This was by no means easy, but after patience and practice a considerable degree of proficiency was attained, and he added 60 per cent. to his former capacity. He believes a still further advance is practicable, but is confident that any compositor by the use of his inventions will be able to add at least 50 per cent to his speed.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Obstacles in the Way of Colonial Representation in the Home Parliament.

The Question of Food Supply—India's Status—The Better Policy to Follow.

If the colonies were granted full representation in the British Parliament, is it not more than likely that it would cause the House of Commons to become so unwieldy and difficult to manage that no Government could hope to carry out a programme with any certainty? If on the other hand the colonies were given only a partial representation, would they not be in such a minority that their influence for good would be almost nil? In any case their measures coming before Parliament would be debated upon by men who probably might have but little opportunity or even desire to ascertain the true merits of the case from a colonial point of view. How much better would it be if the colonies could present a united front to the Government of the day and by enlisting its sympathy secure its support backed by a majority in parliament? Even if the agents general of the colonies, among whom may be included our own high commissioner, were to take united action and work together I believe it would be productive of more good than could be procured through a minority representation in the British parliament.

I cannot see what is to be gained either by the colonies or the mother country by giving the former a voice in the councils of the nation to sit in judgment upon international affairs. It seems to me that the colonies have quite enough to do to look after themselves without mixing up in the affairs of Great Britain and probably embarrassing instead of assisting her in time of emergency. If they desire to show their loyalty to England and to take part in the development and preservation of the Empire there are several practical ways open to them without saddling themselves with unnecessary responsibilities and burdens which probably Great Britain will never invite or expect them to assume. They can devise some comprehensive programme for co-operation in several directions. In emigration matters, for instance, a plan for concerted action might be arranged by which the colonies could work together instead of separately and in competition with each other as at present, for the purpose of directing the surplus population of Great Britain to British colonies instead of allowing it to drift to foreign countries. By pursuing this course and attending strictly to the development of their respective colonies, the colonists would be paving the way for England's independence of foreign countries for her bread supply. They might open their ports to admit goods of British manufacture free of duty, as Britain admits theirs. There are other ways by which the colonies could do their part in building up and maintaining the empire which it is unnecessary to enumerate at this time.

As for Mr. Parkin's contention that the colonists should bear a part of the cost of the navy of Great Britain it may be said that if the colonies declared their independence and separated themselves from the mother country to-morrow England would still maintain as large a naval force as she does now. It must be remembered that Britain, has vast possessions and interests to protect outside and independent of her colonies, and in order to hold the front rank as a naval power she must keep ahead of other nations in the size and power of her navy. If Great Britain was called upon to decide between India and her colonies which she would retain she would unhesitatingly declare in favor of the former. It is to preserve the Indian empire that England is ever watchful, and it is to keep the road open to that great possession as well as to guard her avenues of supply that she maintains so large and efficient a navy.

There are not a few men who believe that India will be able to supply Great Britain's demand for wheat and make her independent of all other sources for that article of food. I do not, however, share in this opinion for several reasons. First because so large a quantity is required to feed the immense population of India itself, and secondly, because it is always necessary to lay in and keep on hand a large reserve stock of grain in that country to guard against famine. Although the estimated wheat crop of India is over 240,000,000 bushels she has never exported in any one year over a sixth part of that amount. Although the construction of railways in India is being constantly pushed forward, more importance is placed on railway development there as a means by which the centres of food production may be brought into closer contact with the centres of population and the famine tracts than for the purpose of carrying wheat for export purposes. The quality of Indian wheat, too, is indifferent owing to the rude methods of agriculture adopted by the natives.

As I have already shown, India and the colonies combined do not as yet supply one-fifth of the wheat which Great Britain requires to import in order to feed her people. The food supply of the mother country is a serious factor in the deliberations of British statesmen in any complications that may arise with other nations, and it is one of the chief reasons why England's navy must be maintained in a high state of efficiency. I think the colonies can do better service to Great Britain by putting forth all their energies and means for their development, in order that at as early a date as possible they may make the Mother Country independent of foreign lands for her corn. England herself is rich enough to look after her navy without outside assistance. But while she is the greatest naval power in the world, she is liable at any time to be seriously weakened through the uncertainty of her food supply. With her European sources of supply uncertain, her Indian empire and her colonies as yet incapable of supplying her demand in breadstuffs, she is obliged to look to the United States. It is certainly a grave aspect of affairs to consider that if England and America went to war with each other the former might have difficulty in procuring bread enough to feed one-half her population. Yet this is about how the matter stands, and it brings prominently forward what should be the duty of the colonies to the Mother Country if they wish to demonstrate their loyalty to her. It also brings prominently forward the peculiar position our High Commissioner in London has placed himself in by proposing that Great Britain should tax foreign grain in favor of colonial produce. In my next letter I shall have something to say regarding emigration and its bearing upon the welfare of the Empire, also the effect which the National Policy has upon Canadian immigration.

INTER NOS.

Three Kinds of Lightning.

Lightning often injures without destroying life. Its effects may properly be classified into those which are mild, severe and fatal in their character.

In mild cases the person struck may or may not lose consciousness for a brief period of time. There may be a temporary paralysis of one or more of the limbs for a few hours. Vomiting and nausea sometimes occur.

In severe cases the victim may be knocked down with violence or may be thrown several feet and lose consciousness. External injuries may be found, such as burns and bruises. There may be fractures of bones or bleeding from the nose, ear or mouth. There may be a loss of memory for a time, and cases of insanity have been known to follow. Deafness is a common symptom and is due to rupture of the eardrum.

In fatal cases death is usually instantaneous, but it has been known to occur after the lapse of several days from secondary causes. It may be caused by apoplexy or by rupture of the heart or large blood vessels.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Spontaneous Generation of Animal Life.

A reader residing at Waco, Tex., writes as follows: "I witnessed a transmutation in San Saba county, this state, in the spring of 1859. In a little dirty, stagnant pool I saw a quantity of horsehairs, some of which were wriggling at a great rate. I got off my horse and examined them. A minute snake's head was visible at the upper or root end of each hair, and I could even see what appeared to be the pulsations of the arteries of the body. For some length below the 'head' the hair appeared to be greatly enlarged; only about half the body (hair) was instinct with life, while the whole lower part was nearly or quite motionless. The upper half was in constant, never ceasing motion. I saw this with my own eyes and know it to be true. What do the philosophers say about it?"

I can answer this query in a very short sentence. They say that spontaneous generation of life is an utter impossibility.—St. Louis Republic.

Æsthetic Mrs. Wilde.

Ultra-æstheticism in dress having gone out of fashion, and having accomplished its work, Mrs. Oscar Wilde today is only æsthetic enough to tinge the fashions of the season with her own personality. Her gowns are perfect examples of good taste in fold, harmony and color. She is still so æsthetic as to care for the beautiful, but she bends the fashions of the day to her own sweet will instead of clinging to the mediæval forms reintroduced some years ago by her husband. Indeed in no manner is Mrs. Wilde conspicuous today, excepting for her beauty and good taste, any more than is her husband, who has returned to the somewhat conventional costume of the latter portion of the Nineteenth century, and only occasionally helps to make a new color or a flower "the rage."—Arthur Howard Pickering in Ladies' Home Journal.

English Plum Pudding.

One pound of raisins, quarter pound of flour, one pound of suet, chopped fine, one pound of currants, three-quarters pound stale bread crumbs, half nutmeg (grated), quarter pound brown sugar, five eggs, grated rind of one lemon, half pint of brandy, half pound of minced candied orange peel.

Clean, wash and dry the currants; stone the raisins. Mix all dry ingredients together. Beat the eggs, add them to the brandy, then pour over the dry ingredients and mix thoroughly. Pack in greased small kettles or molds (this will make six pounds), and boil six hours when you make it, and when wanted for use serve with hard or brandy sauce.

Running Boats Under Water.

Submarine navigation may now be considered an accomplished fact, if the reported trials of the Detroit submarine boat are not unduly exaggerated. According to the published accounts of a trial recently made on the Detroit river the boat attained a speed of ten knots under water, and steered, rose and sank under the most perfect control. The motive power used on the surface is steam, but under the water the boat is driven by means of a powerful electric storage battery which is charged by the steam engine while running the boat on the surface.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

COAL

(FORMERLY THE VANCOUVER COAL CO.).

THE NANAIMO COAL | THE SOUTH FIELD COAL

(Used principally for Gas and Domestic Purposes). (Steam Fuel).

THE NEW WELLINGTON COAL

House and Steam Coal are mined by this Company only.

THE "NANAIMO" COAL gives a large percentage of Gas, high Illuminating power unequalled by any other bituminous Gas Coal in the world, and a superior quality of Coke.

THE "SOUTH FIELD" COAL is now used by all the leading Steamship Lines on the Pacific.

THE "NEW WELLINGTON" COAL, which was introduced early in the present year, has already become a favorite, especially for domestic purposes. It is a clean, hard coal; makes a bright and cheerful fire, and its lasting qualities make it the most economical fuel in the market.

The several Mines of the Company are connected with their Wharves at Nanaimo and Departure Bay where ships of the lagest tonnag are loaded at all states of the tide. Special dispatch is given to Mail and Ocean Steamers.

LATE SPORTING NEWS.

THE CUE.

POOL MATCH TO NIGHT.

A pool match will be played this evening at the Delmonico between Archibald Reid, of Victoria, and Arthur Clayton, of England. Stakes $25 a side. Best in eleven games.

FOOTBALL.

THE ASSOCIATION PLAYERS.

The members of the Victoria club are requested to turn out for practice tomorrow, be it raining or otherwise. Westminster's strong combination visits Victoria on Saturday, the 26th, so it is important to have a game in view of placing the strongest eleven on the field. The Westminsters are in splendid condition and have developed wonderful science and team play lately, so the Victorians will have to look out.

THE RING.

THE AMATEUR BOXING MATCH.

Professor Bob Foster has gathered a glittering galaxy of amateur boxers together for the contest for the medals and cups on Saturday night the 26th inst., in the Imperial Theatre. The best known glove fanciers in the city will biff one another that evening, and it is expected that the attendance of the sporting element will be fully represented. The judging will be strictly by merit, the best men winning, not like the disgraceful piece of injustice witnessed at the Victoria Theatre some two years ago, when a man who did not even know how to hold up his hands, "won" the trophy. There will be nothing of that sort this time.

MITCHELL DISCUSSES CORBETT.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Nov. 18.—Tom Allen, the retired champion pugilist of the world, has received a letter from Charley Mitchell, dated London, Nov. 7th. Mitchell says:—"I am sure to fight Corbett, as you know, unless he pulls out. I shall be better, stronger and bigger when I face him than I have ever been in my life, and between you and me, am very sanguine of my success. Now, you ask me on the frank what I think of Corbett. I fancy Corbett very much, but keep that to yourself. But there will be a surprise party for them all."

THE SMITH FAMILY.

TO THE EDITOR:—Profiting by experience, whenever I see a letter or statement over the signature of Dr. Richardson, I turn to your next issue with the confident expectation of finding a flat denial of the "facts" from one aggrieved person or another. I am never disappointed. The latest victim is Mr. Joseph Smith, to whose family Dr. Richardson made such mysterious reference in "our conversation of this morning," and whose alleged negligence was made the excuse for again raising the question of vaccination in the schools, with unfortunately a temporary success.

Mr. Smith proves conclusively that, if he erred, he did so in good company, for Dr. Davie ought to have known, if he did not, that the other Smith children had never been in contact with the smallpox case, and that, therefore, the schools ran no risk through their attendance. That explains why his reference was so dark and mysterious; if he had given the facts he would not have been able to scare the school trustees.

Mr. Smith wonders why Dr. Richardson should "for some purpose draw upon his imagination" and make matters appear "as black as possible." There is little occasion for wonder. The people here do not scare now worth a cent, and the dictator finds himself obliged to refort to more startling means to make them; hence the awful warning presented by the "Smith family," with incidental thrusts at rival practioners.

Dr. Richardson is perhaps scarcely to be blamed; he is said to be a painstading and hard working physician, but it is a pity he allows himself to be made use of to further the rather doubtful schemes of his senior, who is content to accept all the "kudos," but who is conveniently out of the way when blame is measured out.
